To the rescue, in the St. Nick of time

After an hour in the icy waters of the Androscoggin River Friday, 11-year-old Wolf was fading. Toward the end of the ordeal, only part of his head was visible to watchers on shore. But as rescue swimmers from the Bethel Fire Department were finally able to approach the exhausted dog, he made one last effort to haul himself up — and firefighters Jim Bennett and Mike Bennett were able to pull him to safety. Wolf was the second of a pair of dogs who were rescued after falling into the river. The two belong to Frank Gibson of Bethel, who called 911 as soon as he realized their plight. For more on the dramatic pre-Christmas rescue, please see page 11.

New subdivisions just keep on coming

As anyone who traveled back roads in the Bethel area or looked up toward the hill-tops could easily see, the hot real estate market of recent years shows few signs of cooling here.

Despite some apparent softening in the national real estate market, signs advertising new subdivisions are commonplace on roads here, and large ridgeline homes are — for better or worse — becoming just another part of the scenery.

Numerous new subdivisions were proposed here over the course of the year.

The Bethel Planning Board alone approved 10 subdivision applications this year, and three more are under review. In total, they involve 128 lots.

Planning boards in surrounding towns, often with more stretches of undeveloped land, also had their hands full.

Among the more notable proposals was the Gardiner Valley subdivision in Andover.

The plan called for the largest subdivision ever proposed in the town, at least in terms of acreage.

It called for dividing a 5,389-acre parcel of land into nine smaller parcels, ranging in size from 500 to 700 acres.

At a public hearing in August, residents expressed concerns similar to those heard in regard to other such large-scale plans.

Small towns grapple with demands of development

The rapid pace of local development has pushed smaller area towns to consider updating or otherwise beefing up their growth ordinances.

But not all the proposed changes have been well received by town voters.

Last year, the pace of development in Gilead (Pop. under 200) prompted townspeople to re-establish a Planning Board, in order to relieve town selectmen of the responsibility for reviewing development applications.

Recreation trails: an ongoing effort with ongoing obstacles

In October of 2005, the long-awaited multi-use recreational bridge over the Androscoggin River in Bethel finally became a reality.

The 400-foot long, $1.4 million bridge provides a safe way for snowmobilers, cross-country skiers, walkers, hikers, cyclists and others to cross the river.

Until the bridge was opened, they were forced to cross the Route 2 highway bridge, often sharing the narrow space with heavy car and truck traffic.

The new bridge is expected to be a keystone to the local trails network, itself a work in progress.

That work is being led by the Bethel Area Trails Committee.

The Trails Committee, a subgroup of the Mahoosuc Land Trust, was formed in March 2004, with the goal of expanding recreational trails here.

The committee began 2005 with a January trails forum attended by 75 citizens at Telstar High School, seeking input on the results of a trail user survey completed in late 2004. The result was to begin to form task forces to move forward the most compelling trail projects.

The lead project, Bethel to Angevine Park, received the support of landowners to extend the Pathway from the end of the new bridge under Route 2 and along the riverbank behind Dr. John Mason's office to the North Road.

The committee is now awaiting word from the Maine Rec-

Local business balance evolving in the face of new challenges, opportunities

The past year, like many of late, was not a good one for the wood products industry, long a major source of local employment.

But the year was encouraging for some newer enterprises, especially those capitalizing on creativity and connectivity to the wider world.

In November, Leon Favreau, owner of Bethel Furniture Stock, announced that the West Bethel mill would close, eliminating roughly three dozen local jobs.

The announcement was not unexpected. BFS, like many other wood products companies had been battling for several years against a tide of cheaper foreign imports.

In fact, the mill had closed down for a period of time three years earlier, laying off 80 employees. The company then re-emerged in a trimmed down form.

But the downsizing, like other aggressive efforts by Favreau to keep the mill afloat, was not enough.

The Ethan Allen mill in Andover also cut back this year.

In June, the company announced it was laying off 13 of its approximately 100 employees and cutting back the work-week for those who remained.

Since 2001, Ethan Allen has closed or consolidated eight other plants in the United States, laying off more than 1,600 people.

(An Ethan Allen spokesman at corporate headquarters in Danbury, Conn. did not return a phone call regarding the current status of the Andover mill.)

Also in June, Hancock Lumber announced that its discount retail outlet on Route 26 in Bethel would close.

Hancock's sawmill here is doing well, and recently added a second shift, but the retail store just didn't do enough business, a company spokesman said at the time the closing was announced.

A FRESH WAY OF LOOKING AT THINGS—The new and long-awaited recreational bridge over the Androscoggin River in Bethel was formally opened in October. The bridge is expected to be the keystone of an expanded network of multi-use trails here.

Sections of major roads upgraded

Improvements to sections of two major highway arteries leading to the Bethel area were completed in 2005, and plans for further improvements are either in the works or under study.

In Bethel, reconstruction was completed on a segment of Route 2 west of Bethel, and another in Gilead near the New Hampshire border.

The work had begun in 2004. Between the completed segments, a 5.7-mile section is still waiting for reconstruction.

The middle portion poses a greater challenge than the earlier section because it includes several sharp curves bounded by ledge.

If funding is available, work on a 2-mile portion of the middle stretch could begin in the spring.

In Woodstock, a one-mile stretch of Route 26 on Merrifield Hill was reconstructed and widened to accommodate a new uphill passing lane.

On a related issue, discussion by Woodstock's Comprehensive Plan Committee led to a proposal from its chairman, Norm Putnam, to build a bypass for Route 26 around Bryant Pond Village.

The bypass proposal stemmed from concerns about the safety of having a large volume of traffic, including

NO NEED FOR THIRD CRUISER

To the Editor:

As still a current member of the budget committee until year-end it disturbs me to see, hear and read the town manager trying to put three cruisers on the road full time. We discussed this last spring during our budget meetings and (if I remember correctly) we opted to continue with two cruisers and use the third as a backup. I do not see the justification of pushing for a third cruiser which cost wise is going to impact the town's budget and the taxpayer as a whole.

The following was a survey done on area towns when I called: Rumford, population 6,500 has three cruisers, one unmarked and two detectives' cars; Mexico, pop. 2,900 has three cruisers; Dixfield, pop. 2,583 has two cruisers and one unmarked SUV; Fryeburg, pop. 3,500, has three cruisers and one 4WD utility they use to haul a boat around with; Bridgton, pop. 5,000 has six cruisers; Norway, pop. 4,500 has five cruisers; Paris, pop. 4,793 has two cruisers plus an Explorer. What does that tell you, either the town of Norway might be over cruisers; either way, for Bethel being a town of approximately 2,500, it does not seem feasible to increase to a third full-time cruiser without further study or reasoning showing why it is necessary.

I think the town manager should wait and broach this subject at budget time instead of trying to slide this in before that process happens. In the past the budget committee and selectmen have put a lot of the capital improvement projects on the back burner as a way to cut the budget or cap it where it is. I do not think it is fair to the capital improvement budget for roads, etc., to possibly be put back on the back burner once again only to increase the cruiser force of the police department. Last year we said that we are really going to have to seriously consider getting some of these capital improvement projects done instead of continuing to cut them.

Perhaps the town is looking at an increase of tax money coming in. If that is the case, it doesn't mean that it has to be spent on items before we know what we have got coming in. Perhaps there is an extra stash of money sitting around and this is where they might like it to go. If you are concerned about this issue talk to the selectmen. Don't be afraid to speak up.

CATS READY FOR LOVE

To the Editor:

A dear friend has gone to heaven and left behind three adult cats that need homes. Maggie is a golden, white long hair and rather shy and very beautiful. Dixie and Daisy are short hair sisters. Dixie is 100 percent black and Daisy is splashed in black and white. They can come to your good home as a group of three, two or solo. They are in and outdoor cats, use a litter box, non-persnickety eaters, and need their shots updated.

From the book "Animal Grace" Mary Lour Randour writes, "Quite simply, animals teach us about love: how to love, how to enjoy being loved, how loving itself is an activity that generates more love, radiating out and encompassing an ever larger circle of others." The past owner knew a lot about love, her cats surely know about love too and are willing to share with you.

LIVING NATIVITY THANKS

To the Editor:

I would like to publicly thank all who had a hand in presenting the Living Nativity on the Bethel Common on Dec. 18.

First of all I would like to thank the members of the Bethel Alliance Church who worked very hard at organizing the production. A special thank you to Drew Webster, who has a big part in the planning of this event each year. Thank you to all the actors, singers and all those who worked hard "behind the scenes." I would also like to thank Mary Brown for, once again, doing a fine job at leading the choir, Arlan Jodrey for providing the hay and many thanks to those who provided the animals needed, Gould Academy and Dottie Boyce.

It is a blessing that we all live in a town where we can still celebrate the true meaning of Christmas.

REMEMBERING JUDY HASKELL

To the Editor:

The old adage, "They don't make them any better!" certainly applies to the subject of this tribute.

Of all the pieces I have written on the lives of people who I have known over the years, including those involving close family members, this is without doubt the hardest for me to even contemplate, the passing of our great Bethel Historical Society friend Judy Haskell. I suppose it was totally unrealistic of me to believe she would always be there, especially when one realizes that she was just a decade older than I am in age. But when you were with Judy you never thought of age and dying. She was so full of enthusiasm, energy and ideas that your mind raced to encompass all that she embodied in our many discussions. So one can only imagine how devastated I was (along with many others) to learn the terrible news last Friday.

From the first time I met Judy in 1974, I knew she was someone very special. She came to the society as a relative of the late Ada Durell, who had been the last owner of the Dr. Moses Mason House prior to its purchase and subsequent donation to the society by the Bingham Trust. Right away, I found her lively, bright, and a keen observer of life, especially its humorous sides. Through all the years, we would laugh about so many incidents that either happened at the society or ones we became aware of through others.

As a volunteer, Judy would serve in so many capacities from society secretary to trustee, on all kinds of committees, and as someone who could be depended upon to cook or help with many things that simply needed to get done, including, with her husband Colwyn, repairing plaster walls at the society's Robinson House. For years, she chaired the Museum Committee and the committee which selected the recipient of the Noll Volunteer Service Award, served as head guide, worked in the museum shop, and assisted wherever she was needed, particularly as an "eagle-eyed" proofreader. Through all this service and much more, we often talked daily, either on the phone or when I saw her at the post office or in the grocery store. This invariably kind and generous woman was always interested in the latest society news and anything else I could bring to her attention. In addition, she often acted as a valued and significant "sounding board" for ideas I had which needed to be explored and refined.

Of all her enthusiasms in regard to the society, perhaps the most evident was each year when we prepared the Dr. Moses Mason House for the annual "Christmas with the Masons" celebration. Judy took the dining room as her space to decorate with boughs, berries and fruit. Like the rest of us, she was transformed during those evenings by the "magic" of this event with its unique lighting, smells, and sounds. This year's rendition was especially memorable since we had a greater variety of people present (ages 9 to 90) and the fact that they really got into the spirit of things by singing along with the harpist in this historic setting. Judy never appeared more radiant and enthused by all that went so very well that evening. I am now eternally grateful that what was to be her last appearance at this event was such an outstanding one.

Last Thursday, we received news that a foundation had provided some funding for a grant proposal we had made in support of creating a junior historical society and establishing a student museum intern program. Judy and I had discussed this project several times so I tried to call her that day to tell her the good news. Despite several attempts, I did not reach her and early the next day she died. With her deep interest in the young, I have no doubt that Judy would be as thrilled as we are by this development. Now we have our work cut out for us to make a success of this new opportunity and to stay true to the rich legacy of service and selfless dedication that she has left us.

GIVE GOD A PROPER PLACE

To the Editor:

I read the recent letter in The Citizen decrying the deterioration of moral and ethical standards since the '60s as evidenced by the corporate scandals involving Enron and other corporations. These misdeeds occurred, the writer claimed, because these corporate miscreants did not learn about God in school. Putting God back in the schools, he implied, would lead to higher moral and ethical standards in our society.

The day before the letter appeared, I began a meeting of our Church's Outreach Committee with a reading from Mary's song of praise after the angel sent by God that tells her she is going to give birth to a son to be named Jesus. In her song about the great things God has done, Mary says that "He has filled the hungry with good things, and the rich he has sent empty away." (Luke 1, 53). Caring for the hungry, the sick and needy was so much a part of the ministry of Jesus, and continues as a core mission of the Christian Faith.

For this reason, a more likely explanation for the deterioration of standards in corporate America is the culture of greed and self-interest that has engulfed this country over the last 25 years. This began with the massive tax cuts and other policies of the early '80s. These actions favored corporations and rich individuals at the expense of middle- and low-income families. Now we are facing more tax cuts that favor the rich, while the recently enacted budget bill reduces Medicare and Medicaid benefits for the poor and elderly, and cuts student aid for needy college students. What do the needy, the sick and students learn about our "Christian" nation from these acts?

Several years ago, the administration let oil and gas industry executives draft the nation's energy policy. Now many Mainers pay $2.29 a gallon for gas and wonder how they will heat their houses this winter while oil industry profits are at record levels. Similarly, lobbyists for the drug industry were instrumental in placing a provision in the new prescription drug law that forbids the government to use its economic power to negotiate lower prices with the pharmaceutical industry. Meanwhile our Canadian neighbor has taken action that allows its citizens to buy medicines they need at a fraction of the cost we pay.

This culture that promotes greed and self-interest as a positive virtue is a much more compelling factor in moral decline than denying prayer in public schools or the right to place the Ten Commandments on school walls or in courthouse halls. Real spiritual growth and religious faith are not learned in schools, but come from daily interaction in our families and in our communities of faith. I would not want a school system or any other agency of the government to be responsible for the religious education of my children. That is our responsibility as parents and church communities. Our Founding Fathers had it just right when they forbid government from making any "law regarding an establishment of religion," but also forbid any restraint on our "free exercise" of religion.

This country may be the wealthiest and most powerful country in the world. But as long as it, as a matter of national policy, allows corporate executives to believe that the laws do not apply to them, and ignores the needs of the poor, the sick, and the elderly, we will not give God a proper place in our lives, as the writer would like. We need to understand what Christianity truly means at this sacred time of the year, and act on that understanding.

In our back yard:

Looking good can be a lot more healthful in the new year

We all use personal care products for that clean and healthy look: shampoo, toothpaste and cream are part of our daily routine. Yet many of us have been surprised to learn that some of the personal care products available for sale contain ingredients that can actually be hazardous to our health.

Natural, hypoallergenic or fragrance-free are good sounding labels, but these claims can be misleading.

Studies reveal that many personal care products on the market have ingredients that are linked to allergic reactions, birth defects and even cancer.

So it is curious then, that the U.S. government does not require health studies or pre-market testing on personal care products. Some common chemical ingredients of particular concern to health experts are phthalates and parabens, which can be found in products from nail polish to deodorant.

These chemicals are not necessarily listed as ingredients on all labels, but several major companies started phasing out phthalates in 2004 in response to consumer concerns. The good news here is, we as consumers have choices. The FDA is now requiring companies to post warning labels on many products that have not been tested.

The state of California has even started requiring manufacturers who sell there to identify any products with carcinogens or reproductive toxins on the label.

We as consumers can benefit from taking the time to read the labels carefully and making informed choices.

But sometimes even smart shoppers who read the labels can get confused by the scientific terminology.

To help us, there is a new website that clearly spells out what ingredients to avoid. At www.ewg.org/reports/skindeep2/index.php you will find an online database making it easy to check the safety of over 7,500 personal care products.

In addition, there is another site www.safe-cosmetics.org/companies/signers.cfm featuring a list of companies who have signed the "Compact for Safe Cosmetics," pledging to phase out chemicals banned by the EU. The same site also provides listings of companies with organic products.

With the holidays and a New Year on the way, we have an opportunity to take inventory and shop smarter by choosing personal care products that are free from possible harmful effects.

With good information and the power of choice, we can all be safer, healthier and look good, too.

Briefly

Tripp ordered to pay court costs

BETHEL — Former Bethel Police Chief Darren Tripp has been ordered by a federal court judge to reimburse the town of Bethel for more than $6,000 in court costs, following his long legal battle with the town. But the money would go to the Maine Municipal Association's Risk Pool, Bethel's insurer, which hired an attorney to defend the town. Tripp, who was fired by Town Manager Scott Cole in early 2004, sued the town for monetary damages and to try to get his job back, then filed appeals when he lost the lawsuits. MMA considered the lawsuit frivolous, Cole said. The appeals were also rejected.

New Year's Bethel lineup

BETHEL — The eighth annual New Year's Bethel will take place the evening of Dec. 31 at several locations in Bethel Village. Activities will include: on the Common, a Dragon Parade at 6 p.m., a fire for roasting marshmallows, and fireworks at 11 p.m.; refreshments all evening at the Robinson House on Broad St.; ringing in the New Year at the town clock on Main Street (bring your own bell). Musical entertainment at various locations will include Joe Perham, Maine humorist; the State Street Traditional Jazz Band; Three Wheel Drive (folk and folk/jazz); Ti'Acadie (Quebecois, New England and old-time dance music); and the Fred Garbo Inflatable Theater (with large inflatable props). Tickets, at $10 for adults and $8 for ages 8-16, may be purchased in advance at the Bethel Citizen, Bethel Historical Society, Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce and Maine Line Products (Locke Mills).

Golf event funds donated

BETHEL — Members of the Campton Classic Golf Tournament, an annual golf event held at The Bethel Inn Resort and Country Club, donated $2,000 to the Bethel Rotary's Christmas for Children program. The Bethel Rotary Club's Christmas for Children is an annual fundraiser to support the purchase of toys for needy children in the area. "This very generous contribution from Mike Tamasi and his fellow golfers from the Campton Classic was a larger reason why we reached our goal of $12,000 for the Christmas for Children benefit," said Steve Wight, president of the Bethel Rotary Club. "The number of children grew this year to 180 and such contributions made it possible to grant the wishes of these children and families." The Campton Classic is a golf group from Campton, N.H. that has been coming to the Bethel Inn for their annual tournament since 1995. "We're excited to help support the children of the Bethel community this holiday season," said Mike Tamasi, organizer of the Campton Classic Golf Tournament.

Millworker died of heart condition

RUMFORD — A NewPage Corp. employee who fell off a paper mill tank Monday died of heart failure, not from the fall, according to police. John Crawford Jr., 58, of Dixfield was found shortly after he fell at about 6 p.m. He was taken to Rumford Hospital where he was later pronounced dead. It was determined that he had only minor injuries from the fall, and had died from cardiomyopathy, an existing medical condition.

Young skier falls from lift

BARTLETT, N.H. — A 7-year-old boy suffered only minor injuries Thursday after falling about 40 feet from a chairlift and landing on his skis at the Attitash Bear Peak ski resort. The Gloucester, Mass., boy was on the Summit Triple chairlift when he slid off his seat, said Tom Chasse, the resort's president. His father and cousin tried to grab him but couldn't hold on. The boy's father jumped down after his son and also landed on his skis. Chasse said the boy suffered a strained ankle but was otherwise unharmed. He did not know the boy's name, but said the child was lucky to have landed on a soft spot that had not been packed down.

Subdivisions

WHITE HOT—The popularity of Sunday River Ski Resort has helped to fuel the real estate market in the Bethel area. Here: a new road and bridge in The Peak subdivision. (Photo: A. Aloisio)

They worried about the adequacy of the project's roads, the loss of traditional public access to the land, and the impact on town services.

The parcel of land that includes the proposed Gardiner Valley subdivision also includes an additional 1,800 acres in neighboring Newry.

In November, MaineVest LLC, the marketing company behind the Andover project, presented the Newry Planning Board with a plan that calls for carving those 1,800 acres into 60 lots.

That plan is currently under review, but for the moment the Andover project is "on hold," according to engineer Tom Dubois, of Main-Land Development, the Livermore Falls consulting firm that has handled most recent subdivision plans in this area.

Closer to Bethel, a 58-lot, 441-acre residential development, "The Peaks" has been approved for the slopes of Mt. Will in Newry.

A 300-foot buffer would protect the summit and a nearby hiking trail.

In an unusual move, Newry selectmen agreed in August to allow the developers to sell lots before the project road is constructed.

In return for the approval, the developers, Mike Liberti and Bruce Lilly, agreed to post a $1.8 million guarantee.

The bond is intended to insure that the road gets built, even if the developers end up abandoning the project (as has been known to happen).

Towns

But a year later the board's efforts to develop ordinances led to a backlash — in the form of a petition and vote to abolish the board.

Some residents were concerned new ordinances would lead to too many restrictions on private property.

The town, warned one critic, was on the way to becoming "Gilead, Mass."

But at a special Town Meeting in June the new ordinances were adopted, and the Planning Board itself was preserved — if only by the margin of a single vote, 33-32.

In Newry, an increase in the number of homes in hard-to-reach places prompted the Fire Department to propose that all new homes larger than 2,000 square feet be required to have an automatic sprinkler system.

But many residents, and several developers, objected, saying people shouldn't be forced to purchase such protection.

Selectmen were also skeptical, and the proposal was dropped for the moment.

Instead, town officials are now focusing their efforts on the development of a general Fire Protection Ordinance, which will primarily address subdivisions.

Greenwood voters also approved new and revived ordinances this year.

At a special Town Meeting in November they approved revisions to the town's Subdivision Ordinance, and they adopted the town's first Site Plan Ordinance (which applies primarily to new businesses).

They balked, however, at a proposal to give the town code enforcement officer the authority to approve building permits in non-shoreland zoning areas (the usual arrangement in most other local towns).

Members of the Planning Board currently have that responsibility, and most said they want to keep it.

The change was defeated, but the issue is expected to be revisited at Greenwood's annual Town Meeting in March.

Late in the year Greenwood's Comprehensive Plan Implementation Committee also began work on another sensitive issue.

Committee members are studying regulations from other towns governing ridgeline development, with the aim of amending the Greenwood's Land Use Ordinance to include ridgeline rules.

The committee does not expect to have a proposal on the matter ready in time to present to Town Meeting in March, according to Town Manager Kim Sparks.

Businesses

But hardware and lumber were selling well intown, where Western Maine Supply Company was doing a strong business, buoyed in large part by the recent construction boom.

In November of 2004, Western Maine completed a 33,000-square-foot drive-through lumber store, and this year the company began work on an additional 2,500-square-foot expansion, which will accommodate new kitchen and bath, and door and window offerings, as well as more space for hardware.

The new addition is expected to be open April 1, according to co-owner Frank Lowell.

Getting Creative

In April, more than 50 local people turned out for a community conference on "Our Creative Economy."

The "Creative Economy" is a broad term that encompasses people engaged in creative endeavors, such as musicians, artists, designers, craftspeople, healers, gardeners, growers and even techies.

Maine Gov. John Baldacci has described the creative economy, as "a catalyst for the creation of new jobs in Maine."

Conference organizers believe the Bethel area is the natural setting for a flourishing creative economy, given the area's natural beauty and quality of life — and the skilled, resourceful people such attributes tend to attract.

And that view is borne out not only by new businesses coming to the area, but also by some long-established local enterprises — including Bonnama Pottery, Mt. Mann Jewelers and S. Timberlake Company.

Together the three small businesses have been doing business here for a total of 90 years.

More recent additions to the local creative economy include Ted and Connie St. Pierre, who in 1996 opened the Outlook recording studio.

And Connie, tapping the marketing potential of the Internet, has since established herself as a best-selling New Age musician, selling her CD worldwide over the Internet.

And even Leon Favreau, a battle-scarred veteran of the old economy, sees real potential in the creative economy.

For his next endeavor, he said, he plans "to be delving into 'spiritual furniture.'"

Such items would include a "yoga stool," kits for creating "energized chairs," from existing designs, and devices such as the "Ring of Oden," which he describes as "a healing tool that optimizes positive and negative ion flow throughout the body and helps restore homeostasis or optimal balance."

Trails

reational Trail Program to see if it will receive funding to extend a paved trail over that section.

Top priorities for 2006 will include extending the Pathway from Davis Park to Telstar and improving connections within Bethel Village.

Traditional trails

Any trails developed by the Trails Committee are expected to also tap into the informal trails network that already exists here.

Traditional snowmobile trails feature prominently in the existing network, but over the past year their vulnerability has become increasingly apparent.

The existence of such trails depends on permission from the private landowners whose property they cross, and increased development activity has created a situation in which that permission may be harder to come by.

Recently a proposed subdivision between the North Road and the Androscoggin River has threatened the continued use of a trail running between Bethel and Gilead. The trail is popular not only with snowmobilers, but also cross-country skiers.

Twelve-hundred feet of that trail crosses land slated to be divided into five house lots.

Unless permission can be obtained from all five of the eventual purchasers (which appears unlikely), the trail will be severed and closed.

The developers of the parcel have given permission for the trail to be used during the current winter season, according to Robert Lowell, trailmaster of the Bethel Snow Twisters, the club that maintains that section of trail.

But after that, the future of the trail is unclear. A possible alternative route skirting the subdivision is being discussed.

The developers, Lowell said,

"have promised to work with us to figure something out."

Even trails on public land can be subject to closure, especially when they cross state lines.

For example, a dispute between Maine and New Hampshire had in effect closed a popular 70 mile interstate loop from Bethel to Songo and Crocker ponds, Evergreen Valley, Deer Hill, Route 113, Gilead, then back to Bethel.

Until four years ago snowmobilers from both states could travel trails in either state without registering their sleds in the other state.

But that agreement fell apart, in part because Maine believed increasing numbers of New Hampshire riders were using Maine trails without paying to help maintain them.

The end of the agreement meant that snowmobilers in one state could not ride the part of the trail that was in the other state — unless they were willing to pay to register and insure their machines in two states.

That standoff, however, was resolved in June, when an agreement was signed by the governors of Maine and New Hampshire opening the entire trail to riders from either state.

"We're just happy campers," Robert Lowell said at the time the new agreement was announced.

Greenwood's new park

This year also saw some new trails cut in Greenwood, though on a much smaller scale than most snowmobile routes.

In July the town signed a purchase-and-sales agreement for an 84-acre parcel of land just across the Greenwood Road from South Pond (map below).

The land had been offered to the town at $200 an acre — well below the market rate — by long time resident Maggie Ring, who hoped to see it developed as a park for local residents and visitors.

Greenwood voters eagerly accepted the offer, and, while the purchase will not be finalized until January, a network of trails was cut and marked this summer by Blaine Mills (with Ring's permission).

The trails vary in length and difficulty. For hikers willing to tackle a little uphill, splendid views await.

Underground activities

There are also more things to do underground.

This year the Bumpus Mine in Albany was opened to the public as the geological equivalent of a museum.

Visitors can collect rock specimens and learn about the geology that created them.

And the new owners of the Dunton Mine in Newry, famous for the tourmaline crystals it has produced, have said they hope to soon be able to offer public tours and educational programs. See newry-quarriesptg.com.

Tee time

A major draw for outdoor recreationalists of a different sort was also completed this year.

The long-awaited 18-hole Sunday River Golf Club opened its front nine last season and added its back nine in August of this year.

Designed by Robert Trent Jones Jr., the course is 7,130 yards, and its self-contained fairways are not only the widest in Maine, they are also afford sweeping views of the Sunday River Valley and Maahoosuc Mountain Range.

The developer and operator of the course is Harris Golf, which owns and operates the Boothbay Country Club, the Bath Country Club and Harris Golf Shop, the largest golf shop in Maine.

Roads

18-wheelers, passing through the small village.

The Maine Department of Transportation has met with town officials to discuss the feasibility of the idea, as well as possible bypass routes.

MDOT plans to do an engineering study in late winter or early spring of 2006.

If the proposal proves to be viable, it would be at least five to 10 years before the bypass would be ready for use.

Domestic tragedy, fires, drug crime, and some happy endings

A family stabbing took two lives and highway accidents took two others in the Bethel area during the past year.

But area emergency personnel also made several successful rescues.

In early February, James Behan, 29, fatally stabbed his father, Kevin, 56, at the father's home in West Paris. The younger man then apparently turned the knife on himself. Both men were dead at the scene.

Later in February, 18-year-old Michelle Waterhouse of Bethel died when her truck skidded on a patch of ice on the Monkey Brook Road in Newry and went over an embankment.

And late in the year, Peter O'Farrell, 59, of Arlington, Mass. was killed on Route 26 in West Paris when his van crossed the center line and struck another vehicle.

Fires

In January, Linda and Roy Buck were burned out of a Bethel trailer they were renting. Three months earlier, they had lost their own Bryant Pond home to fire. They have since rebuilt their home.

Also in January, an electrical fire at the BIG Adventure Center in Bethel was successfully doused by employees and area firefighters.

Crime

The biggest crime story of 2005 took place in April, when a raid by area law enforcement personnel on a Woodstock home led to the arrest of three Connecticut men on felony firearm charges.

The raid resulted from an investigation prompted by information that one of the men was selling cocaine in the area.

Rescues

There were happier endings when several people, injured or trapped, were saved in rescue efforts. Among them:

In April, 30 rescuers teamed up to carry an injured hiker down from Woodstock's Bald Mountain.

In July, Bethel and Tri-Town rescuers carried a Pennsylvania man up from the gorge at Screw Auger Falls in Grafton Notch, after he fell from the waterfall. He suffered head injuries.

In September, rescuers freed Richard Tibbetts of Wilton when a wall of sand in a gravel pit collapsed over Tibbetts' bucketloader as he was digging.

Human lives weren't the only ones saved in 2005. Just before Christmas, Bethel Fire Department rescuers saved Frank Gibson's two dogs when they fell through thin ice on the Androscoggin River in Bethel.

UNDERWATER WATER MAIN FAILS—For three weeks this summer, bethel village was supplied with water by means of two 2-1/2-inch fire hoses. The hoses were rigged after this joint in the existing underwater main failed on Aug. 12. The failed line, an eight-inch cast iron main installed in 1889 was replaced with a 12-inch ductile steel pipe. (Photo adapted from video by Waterworks Diving)

Public schools struggle with state funding cuts; Gould to put $1 million gift toward salaries 2005 was a trying budget year for SAD44, the result largely of the state's effort to revamp its school aid funding formula.

At Bethel's private prep school, Gould Academy, a parent of an alumnus made a $1 million gift to help improve teacher compensation.

SAD44
The year began amid worries that a proposed change in the state's school funding formula could shift a large part of SAD44's tax burden from Newry to other towns in the district.

Newry's large tax base gave it a large share of the school budget. But the proposal called for a town's student population to figure prominently in calculating its share of the district budget — a move that would drop Newry's share significantly, because of its small population. The other towns would have to pick up the difference.

Fortunately for the taxpayers in those towns, area legislators successfully put through a change that allowed SAD44 to maintain its current method of sharing costs.

Some Newry residents objected to the change after it had been made, but the formula was preserved.

An unrelated change in the state's method for funding schools did reduce money coming to SAD44, and forced the district to make cuts in staff and services for FY'06.

The changes included returning to single bus runs, with elementary and secondary students sharing the ride to school. As a result of that change, classes at Telstar start later this year than in the past.

Ann Holt, SAD44's longtime special education director, retired this year. And Bruce Powell, longtime business manager, announced he will retire at the end of this school year.

Gould
Gould Academy received a commitment for a $1 million gift from Margaret Schubert, the mother of a 1994 Gould graduate.

The gift is the second largest from a living person in the school's history. It will go to support an endowment to increase compensation for the faculty.

Gould also settled a lawsuit this year with a Farmington couple whose son was expelled in 2004 for striking a roommate with a skateboard.

The couple sued when Gould refused to refund tuition after the expulsion.

They claimed the student that was struck had been bullying their son prior to the incident, and Gould failed to protect him.

The case was settled out of court when Gould paid the couple $14,500.

Adults in the area lost an educational resource when the College of Lifelong Learning, operated through Sunday River Ski Resort, announced it would close at the end of this year. Low enrollment and budget problems were cited.

Dumont, Telstar golfers repeat as champs

2005 saw Bethel's Simon Dumont repeat as the gold medal winner in the Winter X-Games ski SuperPipe Championship, held in Aspen, Colo.

Dumont, a 2004 Telstar graduate, was the first skier to win back-to-back gold medals in the event.

The finals of the competition were televised live on ESPN.

In the SuperPipe, skiers launch themselves into the air off the sides of a 500-foot-long halfpipe. The goal is to go high and perform difficult spins with smooth execution.

Also repeating a championship was the Telstar High School golf team and individual champ Brady Chapman, who won the Class C state team and individual championships, respectively.

The high school basketball season ended with a first for Telstar High School, as both the boys' and girls' squads qualified for post-season play at the Augusta Civic Center.

In skiing, Telstar Middle School's girls' alpine team won the Class A championship, and the Rebels' Samantha Largess won individual titles in both slalom and giant slalom.

In the spring and fall, Telstar High School's softball and field hockey teams went all the way to the state championship games before losing in both by the same score, 2-1, to the same school, Central High of Aroostook County.

In October, Bob Remington of Bethel was named to the Maine Ski Hall of Fame for his many years of coaching Telstar ski teams and other contributions to the sport.

USFS BIRTHDAY

The U. S. Forest Service celebrated its 100th birthday on Aug. 25. Events in the White Mountain National Forest included a tour of the Hastings Village logging camp site in Batchelder's Grant, south of Gilead. Led by USFS tech Joe Taylor (second from left), the tour examined grown-over remains of housing, mills and waterworks from the camp, which flourished during the logging boom that took place along the Wild River from 1890 until World War I. But also among the remains were the shell of an old bus (shown here), probably from a Depression Era encampment of the Civilian Conservation Corp., which planted white spruce and constructed Route 113 through Evans Notch. Taylor's father, Harry, worked in the Hastings camp, and was a key source for D.B. Wight's 1971 book, "The Wild River Wilderness."

The Way I See It

by Sharon Bouchard

Sharon Bouchard's column is published by special arrangement with the Advertising Department

Weeks of planning, shopping and wrapping have come to an end. They ended in a storm of paper, bows and boxes flying through my living room. In less than an hour the floor was knee deep with wrapping paper, bows were stuck to the lamp and my butt and the only bare spot in the house was under the Christmas tree. And, it was wonderful.

My grandsons, two age nine and one age six, are still a lot of fun to shop for. Though some of the age appropriate toys baffle me a bit, I still know a toy when I see one. However, I know that in Christmases to come I will need an electronic guru to guide me through the maze of games and gadgets that will top my grandsons' future wish lists.

Even though the three youngsters are quite video game savvy, their grandmother is not and I was able to sidestep all of that this year. The kids are still young enough to get some enjoyment out of board games, Legos and books. I'm afraid these non-electronic items will fall into obscurity in the not-too-distant future.

I have no clue about Play Station 1 and 2, Nintendo in all its forms, Game Boy, Game Boy Advance, Game Cube and X-Box. I know what they are; I just don't understand anything about them. What's even more confusing to me is the really hot video game systems, hand held or otherwise, that people are fighting over this year will be obsolete next year. I just don't get it.

As a rule, I don't make New Year's resolutions because I always break them before the month is out, but this year I am making one. And that is to learn everything I can about electronic video games and gadgetry. If I'm going to be thrust into a sea of whiz-bang and beeping toys, I want to know what in the heck I'm doing.

I know this won't be easy considering that I am the Queen of Techno-Dopes. I barely know my way around my computer and I get tense every time I play a DVD. We recently switched from cable to a dish and I have yet to figure out the remote control.

It took a while before I understood the basic options on my microwave and I have never figured out how to set the clock on my car stereo system. Reprogramming the timer on my coffee maker is about as good as I get.

As a rule, I don't make New Year's resolutions because I always break them before the month is out...

But, that is all going to change in 2006. I'm going to start by going through all the user manuals I have never really looked at such as for my VCR, DVD, DISH NETWORK and anything else I own that's all capital letters. Once I've mastered taping and preprogramming to tape shows, learned to pause movies on my DVD player and go back to them without going back to the beginning of the movie and learned my way around my DISH remote, I'm going to figure out the clock in my car. It will be nice to not wait for Daylight Savings Time every year to be on time.

Then I'm really going to take the big leap and learn the difference between Play Station 1 and 2 and by next year 3, all of the various Nintendos, Game Boy, Game Boy Advanced, Game Cube and X-Box and all the different models of that game system.

Then I'll study up on which games fit which systems and which ones are age appropriate for my grandsons. I know there are some really bad violent games available and I certainly don't want to end up buying one of them.

At that point I should be feeling confident enough to find out what a Raspberry and an iPod are and why everyone seems to want one or the other or both.

All of that technological knowledge will probably help me explore all the things my computer can do and how to do them. That would be something amazing.

Wow! Armed with some understanding of what all these electronic do-dads and gew-gaws are all about, the sky's the limit.

Well, that's a bit of an exaggeration, but some knowledge of this world would at least make me feel like less of an idiot. As my grandkids grow into this stuff it would certainly be helpful to know what in the heck I'm buying them for future birthdays and Christmases.

And just how am I going to gain all this insight into the technological world you ask? That's a good question. There are no adult education classes that cover all of this that I know of and any books on the subject are beyond my comprehension. I think the Geek Squad only helps after you buy the stuff and I want to know before I buy it.

I'm not concerned though because the way I see it the best way to become in tune with all this technology is to have my grandsons teach me.

I'd like to wish all of you a very Happy, Healthy and Prosperous New Year.

Christmas has come and gone. Hopefully everyone had a Merry Christmas and a Happy Holiday season. I hope that I will hear from a few more people about what they did over the holidays.

My brother and wife, Steve and Lise McLain, had their son and wife, Brad McLain and Adrienne Vail, for dinner on Christmas Day. They also heard from their other sons, Joey McLain and Stephen McLain. Stephen and his family are visiting his wife's relatives in California for Christmas.

Hugh and I celebrated with Tim and Michele and all the kids and Michele's parents, Leo and Ann Croteau of Berlin, N.H. William, Annie and Ajay were really into opening their presents. Sidney needed a little help with the unwrapping and was more interested in what the other kids were doing.

We got a call from our other grandson, Benjamin Chapman of Ellsworth. They had a great Christmas and had just finished eating dinner. Our son, Chris, called to wish us a Merry Christmas. He and Kym were enjoying a quiet day and had just finished watching the "Twelve Dogs of Christmas" DVD that we had sent. Since it was filmed in and around Bethel, we thought Chris would enjoy seeing some of the scenes. We made sure to point out to him the picture of Lainey Cross on the back of the DVD package, since she was an extra in the movie.

It is great to hear from everyone around this time of year. Hugh had a call from his brother and wife, Bill and Barbara Lord of Phoenix, Ariz. When Bill was here for the Gould reunion this fall, he wanted to look up a cousin, Jane Kochanec, who lives in Gorham, N.H. We found her and stopped by for a visit.

This past week, Hugh and I were in the grocery store in Gorham and were talking with Pete and Christen Mason of West Bethel. While we were standing there, Jane came around the corner of the aisle. It was very nice to run into her again.

Gilead Historical Society
I hope those interested in Gilead history have had a chance to check out the Bethel Historical Society website mentioned in the last column. If not, give it a try at www.bethelhistorical.org. Randy is doing a great job.

Each week, I want to add a little about Gilead's past, and in this column I would like to share a little about Bennett's Tavern. J. W. Bennett was a very prominent businessman from Gilead's past. He will be included in future articles. The following is taken from a little booklet that was published to advertise the Tavern and included several pictures:

"Bennett's Tavern is located among the White Mountains, overlooking the beautiful Androscoggin River, in Gilead, the extreme northwestern town in Maine, adjoining the popular resort town of Shelburne, N.H., and eleven miles from Gorham, N.H., twenty-eight miles from the summit of Mount Washington, eighty miles from Portland, Maine. Gilead is a small but beautiful little village on the Grand Trunk Railway, having express, long distance telephone, telegraph and post-offices and church. No better natural scenery can be found anywhere, pure spring water right from the mountain sides, nice roads and drives, and many points of interest easily reached from here.

"Bennett's Tavern, not over three minutes' walk from the depot, one minute from church or post-office, five minutes from the Suspension Bridge across the Androscoggin River, is a new house, fitted with bath-rooms and closets, open wood fire-places, broad piazzas shaded with maple trees, and a short distance from the woods with a nice pine grove within two minutes' walk. A grove of large maple trees shades the house and piazza, making a cool, airy place, while for good, pure, dry air this place is not surpassed in any region. The house accommodates fifty to sixty guests.

LET'S JUST KEEP MOVING, DAD—Three-year-old Emma Hall of Lehigh, Fla. suffers from a brain tumor, which has left her blind. The Make-a-Wish Foundation contacted her family about offering a trip to do activities she would enjoy. Her dad, Steve, said Emma loves all kinds of rides, enjoys the wind in her face, and likes cool weather (because her illness often leaves her feeling uncomfortably warm). So a trip to a winter recreation area was a natural choice, he said. The family, which also includes brother Andrew, sister Sarah and mom Michele, spent several days last week at Sunday River Ski Resort enjoying a variety of snow sports and activities, as well as a snow groomer ride, and a sleigh ride at Deep Woods Farm in Albany. On Thursday evening, the family tried snow tubing at Sunday River. Here, Emma rides the tube with Dad. "She gets mad when we stop," said Steve after several runs that the little girl thoroughly enjoyed. Steve said doctors did not expect Emma to live past her first birthday, so they consider the time they've had since then a blessing. (Photo: A. Aloisio)

"Wild River, which is famous for the speckled trout, is within a quarter of a mile of the Tavern, and it is but a short drive to several of the best trout brooks to be found. Good partridge shooting, and deer in fall and winter are very plentiful, having been seen within a year crossing the field within gunshot of the tavern, and up Wild River three or four miles is a spot noted for these trim, sleek-looking animals. Half a mile west is Mount Ephraim, with its round, shapely summit covered with green forest growth in sight from the piazzas. Looking north from the front, across the river, rising majestically in plain view, are the mountains of Tumbledown Dick, Cambo, Bear Mountain and Robinson's Peak.

"A large farm is connected with the Tavern, from which fresh vegetables, milk, cream, etc., are supplied. As are the pork and lamb for the table. The house is heated throughout by a wood furnace. The beds and cuisine are excellent. A livery is connected, with good teams of most any description from one to four-horse turnouts at moderate prices. The Boston & Maine Railroad runs through cars without change from Boston to Gilead."

"... Fast away the old year passes, hail the new, ye lads and lasses ..."

In the last few days before Christmas the bird activity was unusual and interesting. On Tuesday last week a male cardinal showed up (thanks to the Innans for lending him to us!) among the dozen or so blue jays. Then on the same day a flock of 18 or 19 turkeys paraded through the yard and helped themselves to the leavings under the feeders.

Next day, Wednesday, the turkeys were back, along with Mr. Cardinal. Then on Thursday we were treated to a solitary common redpoll, scratching around on the ground. The OUTSTANDING TREE FARM—Ernest and Alberta Angevine of Bethel were named Oxford County's "Outstanding Tree Farmer" for 2006 by the Maine Tree Farm Committee. The Angevines were nominated for the award by forester John Laban. "It's one of the best tree farms I've ever seen," said Laban. He said the Angevines have been practicing selective harvesting and sustainability for more than 50 years. "[Ernest] and Phil Chadbourne were both ahead of their time when it comes to sustainability. They started doing it when other people weren't." Laban also credits Alberta for holding the family together while Ernest was serving overseas during World War II, "putting them in a position to buy the land" that would become the farm. In recent years, the Angevine property has served as an environmental education site for local school children, and has been open to the public for fishing, hiking, and snowmobile/ATV use. The couple also donated the land that has become Angevine Park, Bethel's swimming pond. The Angevines currently have 196 acres in the tree farm. On Jan. 11, the couple will also be honored as the runners-up for the state's Outstanding Tree Farmer. The winner is the Malcolm Coulter farm in Eddington. Pictured here are, from left: Dave Harvey, Maine Tree Farm State Committee vice-chair; Alberta and Ernest Angevine; and Laban. (Photo: A. Aloisio)

Inmans told me that they and others in the neighborhood have seen a lone snow goose, primarily in the vicinity of Smith Farm Road, I presume near the Pleasant River which meanders through the fields and under the bridge there.

Now Christmas is past, and all the many holiday gatherings are just a fond memory, brought to mind by full recycle bins, new sweaters, toys, books, and other goodies, not to mention a few new inches around our respective middles.

On Christmas Day we spent a pleasant interlude at Mike and Betsy Cooper's neighborhood gathering. While munching on cookies that Helen and Betsy had baked, we enjoyed visiting with Lesley Rowse and Gary Inman, Jeanne and Andy Boelsma, and the Richmond family of the old Smith Farm. The various children and dogs of said families created their own entertainment. At one point I think there were at least five Labrador retrievers, including Jake, romping in the snowy yard.

Christmas dinner with daughter Martha and family followed. We all ate too much because it was so-o-o good! And Molly and Andrew seemed very happy with their gifts. Our Boston family was due to arrive on Monday afternoon for a three-day stay, hopeful of some decent skiing conditions. Alas, the dismal and disastrous rainfall of Sunday night may have put the kibosh on that.

And now, as the new year approaches, it seems appropriate to think about what's gone on in the old one. We've all had much to enjoy and be grateful for, and there have been some losses as well. Among the latter is the sudden passing of Judy Haskell, who has been a pillar of the Bethel Historical Society since its inception. She will be much missed, and our heartfelt sympathy goes to her family.

We think about what we've accomplished in 2005— and what we haven't quite finished; about the resolutions completed, and those we just didn't get around to. It's time to make a plan to deal with the "holiday ten," or five, or whatever (pounds, I mean), and resolve to get rid of them. One resolution I wish all you neighbors would make is to call or write me now and then with news (836-3011; dhoeh@megalink.net). C'mon, now, you don't really want me to natter on about my family, my dog, my wildlife sightings, do you?

"... Fast away the old year passes, hail the new, ye lads and lasses..." Happy New Year to all!

We could not have wished for a better Christmas.

The weather cooperated with above-freezing temperatures. The snow melted but the forecast predicted a lot more snow in the future. You may "Think Snow," but only for the ski trails and the slopes. It's a little messy for the snowmobilers at present.

The town's residents mostly stayed home for the Christmas holiday, with a few migrating south to enjoy the day.

The reverse of Christmas is in progress. The removal of ornaments and the Christmas tree is happening in most homes. Lights will remain through January and the wreaths will be in place until the fourth of July.

Last week, when I was bragging on the Christmas lights in town, I failed to mention what a nice display was at the Upton Village Store. Friday is becoming "Chowder Day" at the store. Truckers, town folks, and snowmobilers are partaking of this hearty, heart-warming soup. It is not low calorie, but who cares? We haven't made our New Year's resolutions yet.

With New Year's approaching fast we are reminded of the unfortunate people caught in the Tsunami, hurricanes, and our troops in Iraq. The good news is that the troops will be arriving home soon.

Evelyn and Jim Kenney hosted a very fine Christmas Eve dinner with friends and neighbors.

A warning to you all! There are two huge bull moose complete with large racks on Route 26 between Upton and Errol.

The deer are wandering around from apple tree to apple tree feasting on this year's bumper crop.

This winter we have been lucky to have only one red squirrel, aka "Bush Tailed Rat." This morning we watched two. I still can't figure out whether they were romancing or protecting their territory. Incidentally, they have broken the code for entrance into our "squirrel proof" feeder.

The "Bird of the Week" is the bohemian waxwing. Evelyn Kenney's apple tree kept them busy for a couple of days last week. This bird is slightly larger than the cedar waxwing and much more elegantly groomed, wearing white and yellow on his wings and chestnut under his tail. This hardy fellow can survive in sub-zero weather, which explains why he is in Upton. A shortage of berries or apples may send him further south for the remainder of the winter. He shares many of the markings of his cousin the cedar waxwing with the red markings. There are times when it will join a flock of cedar waxwings. He has a rough, buzzing voice whereas the cedar waxwing has a lisping call. The bohemian waxwing lays four to six dull blue eggs with black spots. Evelyn Kenney has enjoyed watching them from her window.

Wishing you all a Happy and Safe New Year.

Mason

by Richard Grover

You've heard about the creeping crud? Mona and I have had it in spades for the past two weeks now. I, for one, don't care if I never get another cold like this one. Fever, coughing and congestion that just goes on and on. Mona says hers is due to the flu shots we had around the 8th or 9th of December. Her cold came on just a few days after our shot, and she had it a week or more before I got it. At any rate, I'm sick of it!

Mason was blessed with visitors during the Christmas weekend. Verna's grandson, Greg Thayer, brought his wife, Jola, and three-year-old daughter, Maya, from California to Maine for Christmas. Maya was thrilled with the snow.

Elsie Aylward's daughter, Eileen, brought her two daughters, Madison and Lucy, for a surprise visit from South Carolina. Elsie and Josh enjoyed having the "patter of little feet" around the house for the holidays. Not only that, but those little girls are sure busy.

Matt Ludden's folks, Dave and Peggy, brought her two daughters, Madison and Lucy, for a surprise visit from South Carolina. Elsie and Josh enjoyed having the "patter of little feet" around the house for the holidays. Not only that, but those little girls are sure busy.

ing eggs, and I heard cackling when I headed down to give them some hot water (cold out, you know!). I just figured they sometimes cackle when they have just laid an egg; when I opened the chicken house door, there was one hen dead on the floor and an ermine (weasel with his winter white coat) with blood dripping out of his mouth standing over the body. Another terrified pullet had broken the glass window and was stuck between the glass and the outer chicken wire. There was no club handy, so I couldn't catch the weasel, which ran out through the broken window. But he kept coming back and peeking in to see if I had left. I scurried back to the house for the .22 and Snuffy. When we got back to the chicken house, Snuffy made a pass around the building, and the weasel came bounding out. He paused just a few too many seconds as he started up a tree, and I ended that threat. No way are those two remaining pullets going to last till spring!

Hanover

by Clem Worcester

Several weeks ago we asked for folks to let us know which were the best Christmas displays around town. Well, no one called, so I'll just make notice of one that I thought was very pretty. The home of Angela and Andrew Bressette and family at the intersection of Main Street and Howard Pond Road is very nice.

The Hanover Select Board met Tuesday, Dec. 20, for their monthly meeting. The Board reviewed estimates for replacing the Second Bridge on the Howard Pond Road. Accepted was a proposal from Community Energy of Rumford to replace the furnace at the Town House with a direct vent gas unit. The fuel oil left over from the old furnace will be used at the town office. Bethel Police Chief Alan Carr attended the meeting and spoke about proposed changes in area law enforcement to better serve the rural areas.

After interviewing four citizens for the vacancy on the Planning Board, the Select Board appointed Steve Pelletier to a five-year term. He is replacing Frank Morrison, who was elected to the Select Board last October.

Speedy get-well wishes go to Steve Dyer who has been very ill and hospitalized in Lewiston. Steve lives on Andover Road.

The year 2005 has just about come to an end so it is time for our Story of the Year. A lot of things happened in Hanover this year and most of them were good. The most impressive story that we were involved in was the cross-country bicycle trip of Barb and Irv Robinson. Barb and Irv began their trip at the Atlantic Ocean in Bar Harbor in May and ended at the Pacific Ocean at the end of August. They peddled their bikes over 7,000 miles to reach their destination through mostly the rural northern tier of American states and southern Canada. Pledges of support for the Robinson's trip from all around the world were received to benefit the Gardner Roberts Memorial Library Moving Fund. Over $7,500 was raised for that project. In September Hanover area folks had a reception to honor the Robinson's effort at Stony Brook Recreation.

Surely there will be many more memories made during 2006. We wish everyone the very best of luck in the coming year. See you next year.

Andover

by Melinda Averill

Well it is over with for another year, Christmas. I hope everybody had a nice Christmas Day with lots of good food and cheer. I certainly did. Now we need the week to rest and get ready for New Year's Eve.

Robert and Kaye Swain and Lucy of Lexington, Ky., and Courtney Swain of Wichita Kan., spent several days visiting his parents, Robert and Violet Swain of East Andover. Violet broke her right hand in a fall on Dec. 14. It will be in a cast until January.

Sympathy is extended to the family of Virginia Morton, who passed away on Dec. 19 at her home in Andover. She is survived by her husband, Owen, and their children, Richard of Andover, Mike of Rumford Point, Sandy of Peru, and Tom of Florida, and five grandchildren. Virginia also had several brothers and sisters in the Andover area. Funeral services were held last Thursday at the First Congregational Church, with the Rev. Jane Rich officiating.

Guests of Eda Perkins for Christmas Day were her two granddaughters, Sheryl and Linda, and their families.

The Mills family gathered for Christmas at the town hall on Sunday; a chicken pie lunch was enjoyed. Those attending from out of town were Chris and Shiela Mills and family, South Portland and Roger and Lucy Mills from Windsor.

The kids go back to school on Tuesday, Jan. 3.

Nomination papers are now available at the town office for the following town officials: selectman/assessor/overseer of the poor, three-year term; fire chief, three-year term; road commissioner, three-year term; town clerk/tax collector, three-year term; treasurer, three-year term; school board, three-year term; planning board, three-year term. All nomination papers must be returned to the town office no later than 1 p.m. on Thursday, Feb. 2.

Swift River Health Care will be sponsoring a Flu Clinic at the Andover Town Hall on Friday, Dec. 30 at 9 a.m. There will be a $20 fee for all non-medicare/medicaid residents.

Have a nice weekend and a happy New Year.

Newry

by Sylvia Harrington

Karlene Bachelder and Gilberte Seeley drove to Cumberland to spend Christmas Day with her granddaughter, Michele Josephson and family. Claire, George and Julie had driven from Wiscasset to be with them all. They had a nice visit and dinner together before Karlene and Gil returned to Newry in the late afternoon.

Sylvia Wight called me from her daughter Gretchen and Bill Strauss' home in North Waterford where she spent Saturday night and Christmas Day. She returned to Lewiston Sunday afternoon.

There were lots of cars at Melvina Cummings and Don Twitchell's home; and at Brian and Wendy Hanscom's home as I drove by on my return from Rumford on Christmas Day.

At the Trading Post, Debbie's dad was here from Arizona. He was behind the counter working last week when I stopped by.

I also found it hard to believe that our Recycling Center was open on Christmas Day.

On the 25th, my son, Mark, and I drove to my brother Saul's home. His son, Philip, from Concord, N.H., and daughter, Rebecca, from Portland, along with our cousin, Claire Marx from North Windham, were all in Rumford for a Christmas Day visit and dinner. Johan outdid herself with not only all the dinner and dips and appetizers before the meal, but she had also entertained on Christmas Eve for many of her friends and family.

As I write this it is nice to know that we have gained two minutes of daylight.

On Dec. 18, John and Nancy Wight enjoyed an early Christmas with Jason, Sarah, Jordan and Payton Berry of Greenwood; Ed and Retta Powers, Terri Littlehale, Brad, Brenda, and Katie Wight, all of Newry; Kurt and Kevin Wight arrived later.

Ed and Retta Powers enjoyed Christmas with her daughter, Mandy Berry in Delray, Fla.

Jason and Sarah Berry and daughters spent Christmas at her folks in Connecticut.

Mike Wight, Terri and Dan Littlehale, Brad, Brenda, Katie, Kurt and Kevin Wight all enjoyed Christmas Eve and Christmas Day at the home of John and Nancy Wight.

Best wishes to all for a wonderful, healthy and contented year of 2006 as it approaches us Saturday evening.

day season.

Thank you to Holle and Fernand for the beautiful wreath dropped off on Saturday. Dana put it on the corner of the house for all to see. It is so lovely, and such a nice surprise to come home from work to. Thank you again.

And, thank you to everyone out there who would smile, or wish a Merry Christmas, as we passed by on the sidewalk, in the stores, or let a car waiting to turn pass in front with a wave, or wherever. Most of you we do not know, but, thank you.

This time of year is very stressful for so many, and to take time from your thoughts of gifts, family gatherings, dinner, etc., to greet a stranger or offer any kindness is a very special thing and worthy of a "thank you."

Sunday ushers in the new year of 2006. Amazing how quickly this year has passed. 2005 will be a year remembered by many around here as a year of ups and downs, but, the knowledge that God is ever faithful and watching over all of us has certainly helped with the "downs," and bolstered us with the "ups."

God has certainly blessed us, and when talking with others, we know that he has touched many others as well. Always remember: God does not punish with hardships. Hardships are sent in order to strengthen us for what lies ahead. With every hardship, many more blessings are sent our way.

We may think we know what we need, but, those are usually what we want.

Only God truly knows what we need, and He will always deliver. He loves us and we are His children — as any good parent, he wants us to be strong, happy, but he also wants us to use our talents. We may never understand the "how" or "when," but, we can always understand the "why."

Best wishes to Pam and Carleton on their trip. We will miss you both, but hope you have a wonderful time. Traveling blessings on all who need to travel at this time of year.

Don't forget that church services on Sunday start at 9:30 a.m. Pastor Ed Gammon always delivers a nice service, and the fellowship is always wonderful there. Our church is affiliated with Grace Fellowship in Oxford (Pastor Ed offers his sermons there at times, too), and if you are in need of evening services, Pastors Waterhouse and Parsons always deliver nice services, too.

God Bless and Keep through the new year.

Ruth and Donald Feeney are new grandparents. Their son Jim and his wife, Michelle, just had a baby boy, Jay Willard Feeney, named after his great-grandfather.

Services at the Baptist Church are Sunday School at 9:15 a.m.; morning worship at 10:30 a.m.; evening service at 6 p.m.; Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. is prayer meeting; Thursday at 9 a.m. is ladies prayer time. The church, Sunday School and choir put on a very nice Christmas program on Sunday evening, it was very well attended.

The Woodstock-Greenwood Senior Citizens will meet on Thursday, Jan. 5, at the Town Annex for a meeting. This is a potluck dinner with game party after. Please bring a dish to share, either hot dish, salad or dessert and an item for the game party. Also, bring your own place setting. Meeting starts at 11:30 a.m. Dues are due for 2006.

Franklin Grange 124 will meet on Saturday, Jan. 7, with a 10 a.m. meeting and a potluck dinner at noon. The meeting is at the Grange Hall.

Curator Larry Billings reports the Historical Society Museum looks very nice with fine decorative arts. The society does all it can to preserve the history and artifacts of the town of Woodstock.

Curator Larry Billings sent Christmas Greetings to President Bush and got a nice letter back. Do you want to see letters from the last four presidents? Visit the New England Cultural Center. You can learn about our cultural heritage and talk to the one who wrote the book on culture. This winter he has many things on display on Royalty, as he is interested in royalty. He has signs he recently got at Trap Corner Restaurant and Gift Shop and a bronze Indian on horseback from the Under Cover Flea Market. Larry recently attended the West Paris Universalist Church where he heard a sermon on ministers in general. Joe Perham was especially nice. He always is anyway. Larry thanks Paul Billings for shoveling the Historical Museum.

Happy New Year to you all.

South Woodstock

by Andrea Wing

I have been busy shopping and wrapping. We have received lots of Christmas cards. I hope everyone had a nice Christmas and will have a Happy New Year.

Jim and Jerold Mason (father and son) have been in business making and selling furniture, lamps, bottle openers and other articles made out of deer antlers. They both live in South Woodstock and have an interest in this business for years.

Sarah Lynch, Zack, and Jessie Hart spent a recent Saturday at their grandparents, Earl and Pat Hart's for an early Christmas. Vic Hart and family were also there. They had a good time visiting.

Richard had a Christmas breakfast with his former co-workers at the State Camp in Bethel. He said he enjoyed seeing old friends.

Joan Poland and Terry Merrill are leaving after Christmas for Missouri to visit with Jo-Anna Southard and family. Jo-Anna is Joan's daughter and Terry's sister. They are anxious to see the new baby, Kleet, and Molly who turned one year old in November.

Call me or write me with your Christmas parties, etc. This paper goes out to town and state and they like to read about local news.

Each year at this time, I always think of my brother, Gerald Poland who died in WWII in the Battle of the Bulge. He died on Jan. 6, 1945 and even though I was a small child I still remember the day we heard the news. He was only 19 years old.

Quote of the Week: "I have learned that all grandchildren are beautiful, brilliant, and take after their grandparents."

Have a Happy New Year.

East Stoneham

by Eleanor Nelson

Hi everybody. By the time you read this,

Christmas will have come and gone by. I hope you all had a good one and have a Happy and Healthy New Year.

This past week Mr. and Mrs. Santa Claus came to town at the Stoneham Community Room at the Fire Station. I believe there were about 50 children there at the pizza party and Christmas tree. A.J.'s Everything (owned by Andy and Janna) donated all the pizzas. There were other refreshments for the evening. Marty Hamlin was there with his music and guitar. I heard from several sources that it was a wonderful party for all the children and adults there.

I was sorry to have missed it. That was the night that the electric power went off here and I was a bit busy. Maybe next time I can be there and see all the little children in town. Thanks go to all the volunteers who put this on. The children all got gifts besides talking with Santa.

Then, on Sunday afternoon some Christmas carolers came to our house and sang several songs. Their voices were nicely blended and were very good. Our kitchen was standing room only. It was nice to have them. The Rev. George Froberg stepped in further to speak to Albert, who was lying down. Everybody has been good to us, the church and town of Stoneham and daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War, Tent 19, and we thank you all.

One day this past week Dale Nelson went to Boston and brought Matthew home from his college. Matt will be on vacation and then the first of January will be leaving for California for his last semester. He will stay and work out there.

West Paris

by Joyce Lamb

West Paris's Melissa Vinograd graduated from Johns Hopkins

School of Medicine with her doctorate in biological science. Her grandmother, Ruth Hazelton, traveled to Baltimore, Md., to attend the graduation ceremonies last week and is very proud to see the granddaughter she raised achieve such a high degree of success. Melissa is a graduate of Oxford Hills High School and Bates College, and received high honors at Johns Hopkins. In January she starts work at Human Genome Science in Rockville, Md. Congratulations Melissa!

At the West Paris Universalist Church at 9 a.m. on Sunday, Jan. 1, the Rev. Robert Wolfe will be guest minister. Jim Burke is the organist, and coffee and refreshments will be served after the service. All are invited to attend.

Sayward Lamb was well enough to fly, so he and Cynthia left on the 22nd for Florida for the rest of the winter. They do not care for snow in their later years and do love the sun and warmth of the south. They have a lot of tales to tell friends in their park about their attempts to get to Florida.

Georgine Thayer will be 95 years old on Jan. 2, 2006. A "card shower" is planned so her friends can congratulate her, so if you know her, please write a note and send it to her at 218 Pioneer Street, where she lives with her daughter, Beverly, and son-in-law, Vince Stevens.

Wendy Lamb is spending the holidays with her mother, Joyce Lamb. She will be here three weeks and is a great help. She is helpful in getting me organized, but isn't having much success in her plans to do away with "unnecessary stuff" throughout the house. I tell her she can have her house the way she wants it and I can have my house the way I want it.

Christmas morning Ken had his younger children, Caleb, Kyle, Catherine, and Carolyn here to open Santa's stockings and presents. Ken prepared a special breakfast for all. For Christmas dinner and presents, Wendy and I went to my granddaughter Kyra (McLaughlin) Flaherty's house in Sabattus. This is the first Christmas Kyra and her husband, Gene, and daughter, Molly, have spent in their home. It was decorated beautifully and there was tons of room for all of my daughter Jude Lamb's six grandchildren to run around and around. Also present were: Jude Lamb and Rob Collins of Lamoine, Peggy Lamb and husband Mike Seaton of Augusta, Nina and Rob Hyssong of South Portland, with their children Joshua and Emily, and Kelly and Cameron Hartley of Auburn, with their children Nicolas, Sophia, and Weston. Gifts were plentiful for everyone and the little ones had an abundance of toys and clothes. It was good to see everyone there, but also good to get home and rest Christmas night.

Buffy is improving with two nurses to give him his antibiotic. The wound on his neck is shrinking and dry, so if he does not scratch it should be healed shortly. He is active and goes out several times a day, whether it's snowing or raining. He doesn't enjoy the cold wind, however, and huddles back in to cuddle up in his warm basket.

ary. For some reason I had gotten it into my head that it was the next week. It was a good thing I checked my calendar Sunday after church or I would have shown up casserole in hand and no place to go, except home that is.

As it was I had no place to go so I stayed home and took in a couple Christmas shows on TV. Actually, come to think of it, they were showing a movie at church that night but I had already said I was not going to be there so I decided to give it a miss. It probably was just as well because I had been to two Christmas parties on Saturday and, considering I was not even sure what week I was on, I needed the rest.

One might have thought that I had been sampling some Christmas cheer, but really it was only a very nice dinner at the home of Lorene's brother and wife, Greg and Fran Adams, in Waterford. I went with Mat and Mandy Konkright to the home of Russell (Joe) Yates where Lorene's mother has been staying to look after Joe and sister, Peg, who is recuperating from a serious operation. Laura took her van and Mat, Mandy and I to Waterford. Peggy did not really feel like making the trip and Joe stayed home to be with her. Other guests were Terry and Rose Adams; Timmy Adams and wife, Denise and their daughters, Addie Rose and Lissie; Terry and Rose's two grown boys, Andy and Art, and Fran's mother, Eleanor.

We got home from that just in time for me to accompany Crystal and Al Lake to the home of Leslie and Andy Aron in Upton for another great party. We had lasagna, salads, chicken legs, and more desserts than I care to think about. There were cheeses and crackers and ice cream, cheese twists, potato chips, cake, and ice cream, chocolates, to name a few. After having the nice ham dinner at Fran's I tried to go easy on things, but I still probably had too much.

After dinner we had what I call a Yankee swap and I got a nice coffee mug and a device to keep the coffee warm when you set down your cup. I am not much of a coffee drinker (Andy used to say more than one cup and I started chattering and would not stop.), but I am sure it will work just as well on warm milk or cocoa. Those present at that party besides the Lakes and I and the host and hostess were Debbie and Owen Brown, Nettie Fitzpatrick and Raymond Chase, Dot and Roger Chopping, Elizabeth Putnam, and a couple I was introduced to, but you know me and names. Leslie and Andy have just added another big room to their house and they needed it with all of us there. They also have a seven-month-old miniature long-haired dachshund, with the appropriate name of Hairy or Harry, anyhow you spell it, you get the picture. He is so cute. I hope I have remembered everyone that was there. It might be embarrassing to remember the dog and miss a person or two.

Lorene and Ralph spent the weekend in Vermont. They go every year to see friends and take in the shops. They spent some time with Dale and Ellie Pontius and family but did not get to see a couple other buddies they were hoping to get to see.

I forgot to mention that Mat Konkright is recuperating from a fall. He was in the bathtub and when he stood up somehow he slipped and struck his ear on the doorknob to the door. Mandy took him to Stephens to the emergency room. The doctor would have liked to have taken stitches but it was a hard place to get at so he could not. Mat is still having headaches from it but the ear is healing well.

Debbie Brown's mother, Ada Cummings, is back home just in time for Christmas, which is good news.

The Country Breakfast took place the Sunday after Thanksgiving at Gould Academy's Ordway Hall, and the Christmas tree on the Common was lit on Dec. 3.

On other weekends during December, Rotarians took part in the annual bell-ringing fundraiser outside the Bethel Foodliner.

Money placed in the pot goes toward the club's Christmas for Children, which provides gifts to youngsters of needy families. Our thanks to the Foodliner.

In addition to funds collected by bell ringing, the club also received donations through other organizations and efforts. Thanks to the generosity of residents, businesses, organizations and visitors to the area, the goal of raising $12,000 was exceeded.

This was the busiest year so far in terms of requests for help, with between 170 and 180 children in need.

The annual Senior Luncheon took place Dec. 13 at the Locke Mills Legion Hall, with about 130 people attending. The Interact Club helped Rotarians in serving dinner to seniors.

River rescue

When Frank Gibson's dogs, Henry and Wolf, fell through the ice on the Androscoggin River last Friday, Gibson called 911 for help from the Bethel Fire Department. Top left: Wearing rescue suits, Jim Bennett and Mike Bennett got to Henry first and handed him to Randy Autrey and Marvin Collins in the department's boat. In the background, Wolf appears to be discouraged and slumps down into the water. Top right, back on land, Henry runs up the river bank as Kristin Gibson calls him. Above left, as the firefighters make their way toward Wolf, the dog, his courage renewed, pulls himself partly up onto the ice. Right, after reaching Wolf and pulling him out of the water, the men hand him to Collins. Left, reunited with Frank Gibson, Wolf makes his way to the house to warm up. The dogs, who were in the water for about an hour, were taken to the Bethel Animal Hospital to be checked. Helping on shore with the rescue were Shannon Sumner, Mike Jodrey, Ray Cooley, Bert Leonard, BPD Sgt. S.R. White and George, Ira and Kristin Gibson. Jodrey said Gibson did the right thing in not trying to rescue the dogs himself. Ice on rivers and lakes continues to be inconsistent in thickness, and people should be wary of venturing out onto it. After Friday's rescue Frank's wife, Clarice, was wished a Merry Christmas. "It will be now," she replied. (Photos: A. Aloisio)

REAL ESTATE AND YOU

HOMES GIVE GREATEST FINANCIAL SECURITY
People need to feel financially secure in order to retire. For most, that means owning at least one house or property, to build up investment equity and to have a place to call home.

Most Americans who are considering what "retirement" means say they want to stay involved in some form of work, not simply to generate income, but to enjoy continued challenge and mental stimulation. A lot of people are thinking of starting a new business at home, a second career that allows them to pursue interest they didn't have time to develop during the first half of their lives.

A large percentage of the 75 million Americans who were born between 1946 and 1964 say they want to spend their leisure and vacation time in comfortable surroundings that offer many opportunities for recreation and entertainment. For many, this vision of retirement includes more than one residence. At the present time, industry studies indicate that nearly two-thirds of all baby boomers already own two or more homes.

For all these reasons, real property is becoming the focus for retirement security.

For professional advice on all aspects of buying or selling real estate, contact Cindy Hiebert at Mahosuc Realty, 207-824-2771

BEFORE BUYING A HOME!

Where do you start when you are ready to buy a home? Before you begin looking for a home, you have to make some decisions. You need to decide what is important to you when purchasing your home. Before starting out on your home search it is a good idea to sit down and develop a list of what is important and what would you like in your new home. Your list could include schools, neighborhood, amenities, number of bedrooms, number of baths, a basement, a separate dining room, 2-story family room or foyer, one level ranch plan, master bedroom on the main level, special financing, seller willing to cover closing costs and the list goes on and on.

An experienced buyer real estate agent can help you through the process. There is no such thing as a perfect house, therefore once you have developed your list you should begin to prioritize it. You can prioritize into, "must have", "should have" and "would be nice to have". By having a clear understanding what you want in your new home, and the priority of those items, you will be in a much better position to decide whether you want to put an offer on a house you see and like. It is also a good idea to consider whether you want to purchase a new or pre-owned home.

Obituaries

JUDITH E. HASKELL
Judith Esther (Klain) Haskell, 72, died suddenly Friday morning, Dec. 23, 2005 at her home on Paradise Street, Bethel.

She was born in Portland, on Aug. 31, 1933, the elder daughter of David A. and Adeline Decoster Klain of Norway. She attended the schools of Norway and graduated in the Class of 1950 from Norway High School. She attended the then Jackson College of Tufts University for two years, later graduating from the University of Maine.

In 1952, she married her high school classmate, Colwyn F. Haskell. Following his graduation from the University of Maine, in 1955, they moved to Rumford and then to Bethel where they have lived since 1956.

After raising her children, she resumed her college studies and drove many long late-night miles from Bethel to Portland, Gorham, and Augusta and return to complete her degree requirements.

A distant family relationship with a one-time owner of the Moses Mason house in Bethel led her into many years of volunteer work with that part of the Bethel Historical Society's activities.

Her appreciation for really good food of widely varying tastes prompted her to become a much-appreciated cook by her fortunate family. The greatest pleasures of her elder years were her beloved grandchildren, and she was ever grateful for the opportunity to be an active part of their lives, from birth to adulthood, in the same town where she had grown up. She and her sister, Joyce Wilson of Bloomington, Ind., remained in close contact with weekly phone calls and also during the summer at the Wilson's home on Norway Lake.

Mrs. Haskell is survived by her husband of 53 years; a son, James A. Haskell and wife Jane of South Paris; a daughter, Kathryn H. Davis and husband Michael of Norway; a special daughter, Jean M. Waite and husband Gregory of Bethel; a sister, Joyce D. Wilson and husband George of Bloomington, Ind.; three grandchildren, Alex, Nora, and Owen Davis; a nephew, David Wilson; and a niece, Elizabeth Mitchell; numerous cousins of both her Decoster and Klain extended families. She was predeceased by her parents and the aunts and uncles of that generation, including her special aunt Bess (Elizabeth Klain).

There will be no funeral services at this holiday season; notice will be given of memorial time in the spring. Family and friends who wish are invited to honor Judy's memory by donating to: Student Intern Program, Bethel Historical Society, P.O. Box 12, Bethel, ME 04217.

NANCY D. REDSTONE

Nancy D. Redstone, 54, of Portland died Dec. 21, 2005 at her residence.

Nancy was born June 4, 1951 in Portland, the daughter of Frank Cole and Clementine Crocker Morgan Jordan where she attended and was a graduate of Deering High School Class of 1969.

Nancy married Charles Redstone in 1969.

She worked for 29 years as a daycare provider, and so enjoyed working with children. She served as a Girl Scout Leader for several years. More recently she worked at the Park Danforth Assisted Living Center as the activities director. Spending time with her residents was one of her favorite things.

Survivors include her husband, Charles Redstone of Portland; children, Matthew Redstone of Portsmouth, N.H., Amy Redstone of Antioch, Tenn., and Benjamin Redstone of Turner; grandchildren, Tyler Nicole, McKenna and Ian; brothers, Rodney Jordan of Bethel, Doug Jordan of Buxton, Wayne Jordan of Woolwich, Stuart Jordan of Westbrook, Linda LaBerge of Little Rock, Ark., and Timothy Jordan of West Suffield, Conn. She was predeceased by her parents; a brother, David Jordan; and sister, Beverly Lowell.

A memorial service was held on Tuesday, Dec. 27, at the Hobbs Funeral Home, South Portland.

Weddings

Mr. & Mrs. Neil Alan Phelps

Carrie Michelle Rolfe and Neil Alan Phelps were united in marriage on Friday, Aug. 5, 2005 in a private ceremony attended by parents, grandparents and brothers and sisters atop scenic Oak Hill in Bryant Pond overlooking South Pond, Lake Christopher and Mt. Abram. The service was performed by Michelle Varulo of Bethel.

The bride was given in marriage by her mother and father. She wore a strapless ivory chiffon gown with corset back and an asymmetrical gathered wrap bodice with a side opening skirt revealing delicate metallic embroidery, beads, and sequins accenting on the satin underskirt. She carried a bouquet of Leonardis roses. Her attendants wore chocolate colored knee-length dresses with an empire waist, satin spliced swirl front and asymmetrical hem. They carried bouquets of Gerber daisies.

The groom and his attendants wore Mexican inspired black guayabarra shirts and linen pants. The bride was attended by her sister, Monica Ludden, matron of honor, and friend, Chelsey Bartlett, bridesmaid.
